These procedures are provided on a cash basis with fees payable at the time of service. Insurance companies regard these treatments as "non-covered" procedures. Your insurance company will not pay for such services. You may be asked to make a separate appointment depending on the nature and extent of the treatment.

Other services may be available. Any treatment may produce unwanted effects. Some lesions in some locations may not be treatable. For some lesions, treatments may produce results that are temporary or that require more treatments.
