Trusts and Estates Update

The Trusts and Estates Practice Group has recently focused speaking engagements on the agricultural community, due to a high demand from Nebraska farmers and ranchers for information about the new federal estate and gift tax laws passed by Congress in January.

In the last month, Attorney Andrew Loudon spoke to the Board of the Nebraska FFA Foundation in Aurora, Nebraska, the Nebraska Fertilizer Association in Grand Island, Nebraska and the Agricultural Entrepreneur Class at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, comprised of students with a major in agriculture who plan to return to their family farm or ranch.

Attorneys Andrew Loudon, Jenny Panko and Don Witt spoke to 50 Otoe County farmers at the Kimmel Ag Hall in Syracuse, Nebraska on business succession planning for farm families. Attorney Jenny Panko spoke to 50 farmers from across Southeast Nebraska at a Thrivent Financial "Keeping the Farm in the Family" estate planning seminar in Auburn, Nebraska.

If you have a community, church or agricultural group that would like a Baylor Evnen Attorney to present on the new estate and gift tax laws, please call one of our Trusts and Estates Attorneys, and we would be happy to do so at no cost to the organization.
