

Preconception Health and Health Care Resource Center

Call for Abstracts

Does your health department have a policy or program related to preconception health? If yes, please share your strategies and experiences with the Preconception Health and Health Care Resource Center!

The Preconception Health and Health Care Resource Center (the Resource Center) will provide a centralized location for tools and resources local health departments, state health departments, and health professionals can use to advance the health of men and women of reproductive age and protect the health of future children and families.

The Resource Center will be strategically organized to help users increase their awareness and knowledge of preconception health and health care resources; identify best practices and strategies for advancing preconception health; promote preconception health activities; and prevent risk factors that might affect future pregnancies.

For more information about the Resource Center and on how to submit a program or policy abstract, visit <http://bit.ly/wOYeRQ>

This first wave of abstract solicitation ends February 28, 2012

Please submit all abstracts and questions to phhresourcecenter@gmail.com.

With financial and programmatic support from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center on Birth Defects and Developmental Disabilities, the following organizations and persons have partnered to design and populate this Resource Center: Association of Maternal and Child Health Programs, Alameda County Public Health Department, Association of State and Territorial Health Officials, CityMatCH, Kay Johnson, Senior Advisor to the national Preconception Health and Health Care Initiative, National Association of County and City Health Officials, and the Center for Maternal and Child Health at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.