

Halo 4 video game review

By Cody Marshak

Halo 4 is a first person shooter and won many awards like best game for Xbox and came in second place for best game of the year. The halo series has been progressing when the first game came out in 2000, by then halo 2 came out by 2004 and halo 3 came out in 2007. Halo 4 is just one of bungee's glories games with there dramatic effect of the player being in the game and being to take down problems with a gun. A lot of people have come into the game to help the theme of being in the game feel real by voicing and to the sadness of a well-known character dying. Halo 4 connects very well to halo 3 meeting a bit new enemies and visiting some old ones. The Multiplayer style of the game lets the player show off his or her talent. Multiplayer adds a competitive concept from beating your friends in match against other players in the world, or just showing off your kill death ratio in a game. As you can tell halo 4 really deserves there ranking in video games this year and I would rank this an amazing game by giving it a score of 5/5.
