

Students Take Part in CJSF and Help The Community

Sam Eckert

CJSF stands for California Junior Scholarship Federation. It started in 1967 and dwells on junior high school students to high standards of scholarship and community service. At MCMS, CJSF is very important for our school and to help other people.

The president of CJSF this year is Jerry Song, he leads CJSF in activities and he runs the meetings for 8th graders, 7th graders, and cabinet meetings. His favorite part of being president is watching the CJSF members helping to make and impact on the community. He loves his job and he try's to get feedback from everyone in CJSF.

Something CJSF does to help the community that they have manna at the end of every month. 8th grader Melissa Vetti is in charge of Manna. Her job is to manage the food drive. She loves interacting with all the students that come and donate because she fees it is important to help the community and provide food for people that don't have enough food to eat.

The treasurer of CJSF is Erin Baker. Her job is to take care of the money we get for CJSF. She wanted to run for treasurer because she wants to make a difference and get involved as much as possible.

Jack Wulf is the Historian in CJSF. He wanted to be historian because he enjoys taking pictures and wanted to get involved as much as possible in school activities.

One of the CJSF members is Taylor Clarke she wanted to be in CJSF because she loves to make an impact on the community and help other people.

Over all students should interact with other students be in CJSF because it encourages students to help the community and people in need and teaches students how to interact with other students at their school.
