

8th Grade Dreams

After a few long years of middle school, 8th graders move onto high school. Different people want to do different things. Some may say....

"I'm really excited to meet new teachers and new people." - Deborah Ong

There are going to be many new people and new ideas at a new school. And new things to look forward to. For example, "The cross country team," a student said.

Or "the soccer team," another student said.

Another thing to think about is which high school to go to. Some may say "Oak Park High School," while others say "Agoura," or "I'm planning on moving soon."

Whenever you get older you are open to more opportunities, and many people have dreams of jobs. Answers to this question vary a lot. Some were, "being an intern at a real estate company" or "an assistant to a veterinarian" or "having an internship at a law firm."

Another big choice, is what to do after, like college, and starting a career. Some answers included, "I want to go to Princeton for 4-6 years, and then get a job." Another answer was "Go to college, I don't know which one yet, and I want to own a small business and take part in American Express small business day."

After college is another choice, answers were, "be normal, have kids, a family, and a job." Or, "have a successful small business."

Overall, there are many different things that you can do after middle school, high school, and even after that. Keep dreaming!
