

Thank you to

for your donation of

to the Malaria Eradication efforts of the Blantyre North Relief Project.

Blantyre, Malawi is home to the Blantyre North Relief Project, run by the family of the Rev. Dr. Harvey Sindima, a Malawi native who is a professor of religion at Colgate University and a clergy member of the Presbytery of Cayuga-Syracuse. The Blantyre North Relief Project provides food, shelter, clothing, blankets, and education to children and families. Support from friends in Central New York has helped dig wells for clean water, build homes, supply generators, and employ health monitors.

The most urgent need currently is to deal with Africa's devastating malaria crisis. BNRP's malaria eradication project supplies insecticide-treated mosquito nets to women, children, and families, and sends workers on bicycles to rural areas to educate, treat, and monitor health issues. Each net costs $6, and 20,000 are needed.

Since implementation of the eradication program in 2010, malaria deaths have been reduced significantly in the Blantyre region. Your donation enables BNRP to purchase treated mosquito nets which will continue the efforts to eradicate malaria in Malawi.

Support of the Blantyre North Relief Project Malaria Eradication Project is a joint effort of the Presbytery of Cayuga-Syracuse and Pyongyang Presbytery of South Korea.

March, 2012

Thank you to

for your donation of

to the Malaria Eradication efforts of the Blantyre North Relief Project.

Blantyre, Malawi is home to the Blantyre North Relief Project, run by the family of the Rev. Dr. Harvey Sindima, a Malawi native who is a professor of religion at Colgate University and a clergy member of the Presbytery of Cayuga-Syracuse. The Blantyre North Relief Project provides food, shelter, clothing, blankets, and education to children and families. Support from friends in Central New York has helped dig wells for clean water, build homes, supply generators, and employ health monitors.

The most urgent need currently is to deal with Africa's devastating malaria crisis. BNRP's malaria eradication project supplies insecticide-treated mosquito nets to women, children, and families, and sends workers on bicycles to rural areas to educate, treat, and monitor health issues. Each net costs $6, and 20,000 are needed.

Since implementation of the eradication program in 2010, malaria deaths have been reduced significantly in the Blantyre region. Your donation enables BNRP to purchase treated mosquito nets which will continue the efforts to eradicate malaria in Malawi.

Support of the Blantyre North Relief Project Malaria Eradication Project is a joint effort of the Presbytery of Cayuga-Syracuse and Pyongyang Presbytery of South Korea.

March, 2012