Sole Man

WHEN PATTI, THE SISTER-IN-LAW OF JOEY Fago, and Weezie, the aunt of Jamie Kitsos, decided to play matchmakers, it was only a matter of time before the targets of their grand romantic plot became inseparable. The couple were “casually” introduced repeatedly for three successive years, and the relationship finally took off on Jamie’s 21st birthday, when Joey, an older man at 26, jumped into a limo with Jamie and her girlfriends to give them an insider’s tour of Palm Beach’s nightspots. Everyone could see that the matchmakers were on to something when the sparks started flying and the couple couldn’t stay away from each other.

Shortly thereafter, Joey figured out exactly how he wanted to propose. He took advantage of a Christian Louboutin event at the Neiman Marcus in Palm Beach to ask the designer to sign his signature red soles on a pair of black pumps (below). Joey was the first person to propose using Louboutin’s shoes, and the designer was so excited that he added some Hindu tracery for good luck. The happy couple wed in Oxford, Maryland, where the groom’s mother keeps a home. Of course, the bride wore Christian Louboutin shoes to complement her Vicky Tiel gown (left). The groom wore Ralph Lauren Black Label and Stubbs & Wootton shoes. The newlyweds left the church in Joey’s mother’s restored Shelby, and they danced the night away to the band Starlight, accompanied by a fireworks display. G.H.S.
