ICOR Expands Refrigerant Reclaim Services

October 5, 2012

In response to the accelerated phase out of HFCs, Indianapolis based refrigerant producer ICOR International, has expanded its refrigerant reclamation operations. ICOR's Refri-Claim® service division provides a Simple Swap™ cylinder exchange service wherein refrigerant users can return common ACR refrigerants to one of several participating wholesale distributors throughout the country. "The need to recover and reclaim will continue to grow in importance as the HCFC phase out cuts deeper again next year into the production and importation of products like R-22", said ICOR VP Gordon McKinney. "We now have full refrigerant distillation capabilities at our Las Vegas and Indianapolis processing centers, as well as hydrostatic pressure testing for re-certifying DOT 49 recovery cylinders, and state of the art gas chromatography. Our reclaim service is well prepared for rapid growth and we are very well positioned in the market".

ICOR also recently announced the appointment of two new regional business directors to their Refri-Claim division. Dave Callender and William "Bill" Doyle, will be providing sales, procedural, and technical support to Refri-Claim's growing number of wholesale distributor participants. Both are HVACR industry veterans that will be working closely with wholesale distributors and their customers to maximize the efficiency of their refrigerant reclaim programs.
