

OPENING ANNOUNCEMENT

—OF—

HOTEL FRYE

The Largest Hotel North of San Francisco

The owner, Geo. F. Frye, announces the opening of the Hotel Frye, Third Avenue and Yesler Way, under the management of R. E. Nixon.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, '11
AT 8 P. M.

The public is invited to call and inspect a hotel of which the City of Seattle may justly be proud; a twelve-story Class A building, containing 350 rooms, 200 with private bath, with interior finish throughout of marble and mahogany—a hotel without an inside room; every room fitted with all the modern conveniences, including vacuum heating and cleaning systems, and service of filtered hot and cold water.

THE FRYE is the only absolutely fireproof hotel in the downtown business section of Seattle. It is the intention of Manager Nixon to make this the hotel for the masses. Rooms without bath from $1.00 and up; with bath, $1.50 and up.

THE FRYE CAFE will open in the near future on a plan commensurate with this magnificent new institution.

THE FRYE has all the facilities for convention purposes, and has been chosen as the headquarters for the National Association of Master Horseshoers and Blacksmiths, which meets in Seattle, April 28.

THE FRYE represents an initial outlay of one million dollars, and stands as a testimonial to the faith of its promoter in the future of Seattle.

ADVERTISEMENT - SEATTLE P.I., APRIL 6, 1911

A festive throng celebrated the grand opening of the Louisa C. Frye Hotel, designed by prominent architects, Bebb and Mendel. George Frye personally supervised construction of the million dollar project, which began in 1908. (University of Washington Libraries, Periodicals Div.)