Joey Harrington's Bio

At the University of Oregon, a business administration major, twice making honors, Harrington was a three-year Oregon Duck starter. Joey was a three-year Oregon Duck starter. He led the Ducks to a first ever 11-win season in 2001, capturing outright the PAC 10 championship, Joey finished his college career with a 25-3 record.

Joey began his pro career in 2002, drafted as third pick overall by the Detroit Lions. Joey played for the Lions for 4 years and was traded to Miami, later played for Atlanta and New Orleans, and finished his career in 2009.

In 2003 Joey established the Harrington Family Foundation, a nonprofit organization. The mission of the Harrington Family Foundation is that "Every child has a right to receive a quality of education and proper health care in a safe and nurturing community." Most of what the foundation does is financially supported statewide, by "community partners, respected organization, businesses, and individuals who are dedicated to the belief that improving the quality of life for children today is an investment in the well-being of society tomorrow."

Playing football afforded Joey a lot of options and opportunities. Joey used that time to learn about himself as well as others. Joey loved the game, he loved being competitive, he worked hard, enjoyed learning new plays, he loved practice, and he loved the fans. But most of all, Joey is grateful for the opportunities both college and the NFL provided him to give back. To open doors for those who were less fortunate. Through Joey's foundation he intends to show that giving to the community and helping him along the way was an opportunity he won't take for granted.

Miss Oregon's Bio

Caroline McGowan, Miss Oregon 2011, is an adopted Oregonian, and could not be happier about it. A native of Iowa, she was born in Des Moines and raised in a suburb, Waukee, where she graduated from Waukee High School. In pursuit of starting her own adventure, she chose to move to Oregon and attend Oregon State University. It did not take long before she fell in love with the state and found herself a place to explore, grow, and to call home. She is currently studying New Media Communications and is excited about the new possibilities media has to offer this generation. She hopes to use her studies to go into public relations or event planning.

Caroline is a self-proclaimed "joiner" and has enjoyed being very involved in the past with her school extra-curriculars, Big Brothers & Big Sisters of America, acted as an advocate for healthy lifestyles, and most recently has immersed herself in her sorority, Delta Gamma, where she had the privilege of holding multiple offices. Caroline loves to travel, golf, hike, cook, paint, sews, lose track of time with friends, and is always singing. Her favorite words to live by came to her on a fortune cookie and read "character is who you are when no one is looking."

Caroline is overjoyed to announce that, as Miss Oregon 2011, she is taking on an official partnership with the American Red Cross in Oregon. She welcomes you to join her in getting involved with the American Red Cross and invites you to take just a minute to learn more about the American Red Cross at
