Wandering with the Sr. Warden

As I believe everyone in the Western Hemisphere, the UK and parts of Europe now know, I have had surgery at Nashville on the 20th. What was totally wonderful was that prior to that time, everyone [probably because I choose my friends wisely] told me that they would pray for me or hold me in their prayers. No one just said, “Good luck” or, “I hope everything comes out OK.” When we walk into the unknown, the common thread that we hold onto is prayer. Prayer is the comfort of a parents’ loving embrace, the strong hand helping cross a dangerous path or a warm blanket on a cold night. Our prayers are not about asking God to change his path for each of us but rather that we accept the path that he has chosen for us. Bad things still happen to good people. It seems hard, often impossible, to see the good in an untimely death or illness but in many cases change happens because of that occurrence. Prayer remains the comfort that allows us to meet the next day and what waits beyond. As I write this on Father’s Day, I can remember my father kneeling next to his bed saying his evening prayers. I know that he was praying for us all, as I pray for you.

I hope you will read and contemplate a somewhat distressing article on “Becoming an Unwelcoming Church.” It is part of a blog uncovered by Cindy Shelby while surfing the internet. It was penned by a Lutheran minister who highlights at least one of the shortcomings in many churches. It seems at times that we sit around and look at declining church attendance and ask, “Where are all the new people?” The uncomfortable answer is that very few people will wander in off the street unless they are extremely motivated to search for a church home but they will more readily accept an offer to, “Come on over to my {Church} house and meet some really nice folks.” In this section of the country where one of the first questions that you are asked is, “What church to you attend?” we need to be more Unwelcoming.

Just as a reminder in my absence. In the event of a need for pastoral care, first call Lynne Ann, followed by Jr. Warden, Alex Cuninghame, Skeet Jernigan, and then Louise Joyce.

We are almost finished with our selection of an Interim Rector. It is hoped that we will have him [no, I did not make a mistake, only several males were available for interviews] under contract by August.

Peace,
Pete Balling
Sr. Warden

From the Property Committee:

There is always something that needs repair at ASEC. Did you know that we had a leaking roof in the back of the Nave? Did your sinuses tell you that something was moldy in the church? Your astute property committee could see evidence of water on the walls and in one instance a few drops on the forehead. So we called the roofing contractor who promptly came out and examined the situation. The contractor has sensitive sinuses and he started having a reaction after just a few minutes in the church. So he sent his team up onto the roof looking for evidence of water getting in behind the flashing and in the seams of the capstone. They did find several potential areas and as a result they decided to put a sealer on all the concrete seams of the capstone and on all the flashing seams of the reglet that are cut into the brick. The original flashing was not changed when the new roof was installed; the contractor just added the roof without making any changes to the flashing. So if you look up at the roof on the outside of the church you will now see where the potential leaks have been sealed. We shouldn't have any more problems now. If you see something that needs attention please tell someone on the Vestry and we will make sure it gets some attention.

Alex Cuningham

Jr. Warden

Notes from Administration Committee

The Administration Committee is currently reviewing the Regulations Governing the Columbarium in order to insure they cover any situation which might occur now that we have added the new niches. Should any revisions be necessary, they will be presented to the Vestry for approval at a future meeting.

The committee will also review the election process at its July meeting in order to be ready to procure nominees this fall.

We hope everyone in the parish is enjoying the summer respite and that you will remember to keep your promises (pledges, etc) to the church up-to-date!

Thank you,
Sarah Gose, Vestry Liaison, Administration

Although summer always takes its toll on our ability to get together, we still are working to share the spirit of All Saints Episcopal Church. Virginia and Linda continue in our Chamber mission. We pray for Edee's recovery to rejoin this mission. If you haven't noticed our Friday advertisement in the Citizens Tribune, you should check it out. Cindy Selby has done a remarkable job of making sure this ad appears and is apropos in its message. I know that we will have people in the community becoming curious and/or interested in All Saints' through this effort. Jason Dockery has met with Walters State and needs some assistance in breaking barriers there. This will be forthcoming, but in the meantime, he has made good strides at Carson-Newman. Larry continues to work to provide our "prayer in a pocket" and we hope to provide and invitation to visit along with the prayer in our BBQ packs for fall. Our Lecture series continues to be exciting and I hope to be able to share more this fall. I am asking John Hutchins to help us with some creative activities; an ever so gentle nudge.

Pray for us as we seek to help spread the word of the joy we share together and how the Spirit of God moves awesomely in our church.

I have many friends who are evangelism-minded. Some of them are ordained clergy, and others are just lay evangelists like me. We share articles and blogs and sermons that we find interesting or helpful, and the following is a blog post that caught my eye. My first reaction to the title was negative, "What? Not be welcoming?" I gasped. But then I read on, as I hope you will. God gives us so many opportunities every day, to invite folks to church for a service, for a potluck, or a concert, and when they come, to introduce them to other parishioners who have similar stories. One example recently was during the BBQ, when an elderly man walked up (I was giving Cookie a break at the cashier table) and ordered a BBQ sandwich. He added, "I only want one sandwich this year....my wife passed away last month..." I offered my condolences, but how easy it would have been for me to invite him to church and to tell him that we have several people here who have lost spouses and understand what a difficult thing that is to go through. I plan to fine-tune my eyes and ears for seeing and hearing opportunities like that and to never miss an opportunity to be an Inviting Church again. – Cindy Selby

We Will No Longer be a Welcoming Church

Posted on March 12, 2013 by Rob Moss

We've decided to quit being a welcoming church. No kidding. We're giving it up. It won't be easy, but we're committed to it. We'll have to do it in stages, easing our folks into it step by step. We'll have to deal with the fear of something new, the challenge of venturing into the unknown. But we'll do it. It will take motivation, leadership, and constant reminders. But most importantly, it will take total commitment in embracing a new focus.

Like so many churches, we've sunk an amazing amount of time and energy into becoming a welcoming church. We changed worship styles, we trained greeters and ushers, we wore name tags, we percolated coffee, we went to workshops on hospitality, we put our friendliest people in the most prominent places on Sunday mornings. But we've realized we've been misplacing our emphasis. So we're no longer going to do it.

Here's what we're doing instead. We are becoming an Inviting Church. That's different. You see, "welcoming" from a missional perspective is passive. It denotes waiting for visitors and guests to drop by. When they do, we attempt to treat them very well and do everything possible to make them comfortable. We'll be willing to change who we are. We'll follow particular formats that have proven to be more welcoming to new people. We'll do whatever it takes to have them come back the next Sunday, even if they shouldn't. Welcoming is about us, not about them.

"Inviting," however, is different. That means we leave the comfort of our congregational home-court advantage. The main activity doesn't happen in our worship space when people drop in, but in the neighborhood when we go out. It isn't so much welcoming them into our place, but going out into their place and meeting them there.

Even that warrants a significant caveat. This is not just another gimmick to get people into the church. The foundation of this isn't an attempt to bolster declining membership rolls and make a better parochial report to the bishop. No, it goes much deeper than that. It starts with who God has called us to be as church. It involves discovering our gifts and purpose. And it mandates joining God at work in the world. This isn't about getting the world into God's church; it's about getting the church into God's world.

If you've read any postings on this blog before, you know that God's mission is what we are to be about. Everything comes from that—including the identity of the church. We exist as church only because God has a mission. Our purpose, our very identity, is called forth out of God's loving care and redemptive activity in creation. We are steeped in God's mission. We are drenched through baptism into this essential character of God. God is at work in the world, and creates, calls, and equips the church specifically for that work.

Each congregation has a purpose within God's mission. Each congregation has particular gifts. Each congregation reveals the life-giving reign of God in unique ways. No congregation is everything to everyone. But every congregation is something to someone. Who can know God through your worship style? Who can experience forgiveness and grace through your congregational community? Who needs the gifts you have to offer? Who can offer gifts you need? Knowing those things, when in conversation over the backyard fence about their pain in losing a loved one, it would be natural then to invite that neighbor to your congregation's grief support group that has made such a difference for many others. When in the employee lunch room chatting about the pressures of our jobs, it would fit to invite that co-worker to your congregation's spiritual direction group for professionals. When sharing the struggles of parenthood with a friend while waiting for your kids to come out of school, it would make sense to invite their whole family to your cross-generational faith development where you have gained so much guidance from other parents. While paying for a car repair, your long-time mechanic lets slip that she has lost her faith, it would easily flow for you to invite her to join you (and all the other doubters who will gather this Sunday) in worship.

Welcoming involves hoping whoever happens to find you will join. Inviting involves sharing God's specific gifts—made real in your congregation—in the world.

The Outreach Committee has not met to commit to summer and fall projects as of this date.

I have communicated with Marylou, and we are going to be looking at a back to school project, but we would like to have some congregational input. We would love to hear from members about their favorite projects for helping those in need as children prepare to return to school....backpacks, food on foot??? Please share your thoughts with Marylou or with me.

If you prefer, you can e-mail us at (mimir1954@yahoo.com) for Marylou or (vgoolsby@pccsc.com) for me.

We will also be discussing and making plans for Rally Day soon.

Ginger Goolsby, Liaison to the Vestry for Outreach

Hospitality continues after the 8:00 and 10:30 services. Don't forget to mark your calendar for our September 8 Sunday outdoor worship service followed by a picnic on the Stephanie Lynn Warren playground beside the church.

SPIRITUAL FORMATION for Adults and Teens

"The Choices we make with our money can change the world!" - Nathan Dungan

August 10, 2013 from 8:30am-3:00pm our church family has the opportunity to attend a conference led by one of national media's go to experts on personal finances. He has been a featured guest on CBS, CNN, PBS, and public radio's Marketplace Money, Sound Money and Speaking of Faith.

Adults and teens will be given tools to make money choices based on their values and needs instead of what their wants are. This is the Money, Meaning and Faith Stewardship Conference. Individuals and Families are encouraged to attend. Our parish can receive an especially discounted early bird rate if we register before July 15th!

“Stand Strong for God”

That was the theme for our VBS this year. I want to thank all who participated and those who helped make this event successful. ASEC was well represented with the children who attended and many of our middle and high school youth volunteered their time to help. The children learned how to Stand Strong for God thru the Bible Adventures stories that Susan Garber and Shamron Stambaugh (aka Queen Esther) told and acted out. The children also had fun learning to Stand Strong for God doing science experiments with John Hutchins and Dana Rice at the Imagination Station. In Chatters Theater the kids learned how they can help send Bibles to India and colored pictures for the children of India. In one of the finale skits the children witnessed a moving scene of Jesus carrying the cross, dying and being resurrected. ASEC is the host church for 2014 VBS. I hope you will consider helping out with this event next year. Thanks to All,

Kathy Haun, Vestry Liaison for Youth

Interdenominational Youth Group

ASEC is in the works along with Good Shepard Lutheran church, St. Patrick's Catholic church and Panther Springs Methodist church to develop a youth group for the middle and high school youth. We have had a start up meeting in which John Hutchins, Julie Stansberry and I attended. The ideal is to get the youth from these churches together for an activity once a month. The first event is a movie night July 12th at Good Shepard. It was mentioned for Sunday, August 18th to get the kids together for a day at the lake if we could find a host/hostess for this event. If you live on the lake or have a boat and would like to host or help please contact either Julie, John or me for more info. The churches are also planning another meeting either July 1st or July 8th if you would like to participate we would love to see you there. Contact me for the exact date and time.

Plan now to be present at the 10:30AM Worship Service on June 30. We will enjoy guest Trumpeters in celebration of the upcoming July 4 Independence Day. You won't want to miss this very special day!

Erica Elizabeth Dean Awarded Scholarships

Erica, daughter of Carolyn & Ben Dean and granddaughter of Sheila & Dick Rice has received two prestigious scholarships that will help her to pursue her college studies in media technology at Pellissippi State.

Dave Auton, parishioner of All Saints', presented Erica with the Whitney Blake Auton scholarship in early May. This scholarship is given annually by Dave and his family in loving memory of his daughter, Whitney, to youth continuing their education.

Erica also was awarded the Diocesan ECW scholarship named for Millie Hazen Tucker. This gift was established to honor Ms. Tucker's many contributions and service given to the Episcopal Church Women. It is a one-time grant of $2,000.

Congratulations to Erica!

All Saints' Financial Report

CHRISTIAN FORMATION FOR CHILDREN

Summer is moving too fast! Before you know it we will be back into the swing of education and activities at All Saints! Christian Formation for the children of All Saints is already being planned!

The SUNDAY SCHOOL will begin August 25th and moving to the large room in the Undercroft! Grades 2-8 will meet there with two of our outstanding leaders. We are fortunate to have Susan Garber leading the classes with the able assistance of Stacey Kesterson, Julie Stansberry, Melissa Weaver and Jason Dockery. They will be continuing with WEAVING GOD'S PROMISES.

The curriculum was developed and written exclusively for the Episcopal Church. It's titled WEAVING GOD'S PROMISES after the process of faith formation in which we learn how God's promises of salvation are intimately woven into our lives. The goal of Weaving God's Promises is to teach children the way of Christ, not only in the church but also in the world, and to give them a solid grounding for future youth formation programs, which in turn will prepare them for Christian adulthood.

Our GODLY PLAY will too begin on August 25th in their room for our children in K-2. Betsy Dobbins is leading along with Ray Lowry, Martha Simerl, Michele Gose, Toni Dosil, Stephanie Godin and Russ Mattocks. GODLY PLAY teaches children the art of using Christian language - parable, sacred story, silence and liturgical action - helping them become more fully aware of the mystery of God's presence in their lives.

CHILDREN'S CHAPEL will also begin on August 25th. The children will again follow the Crucifer out during the service. Our wonderful leaders are Darby Taylor, Marti Anderson, Lauren Cordle and Bonnie Vick. The Crucifer also assists in the Chapel Service. The children will continue to enjoying our new lectionary based program!

The staff tends to mosquito bites and dangling shoe laces. The campers tend to the full-time pursuit of childhood.

We work on archery, backstrokes and self-respect. They teach a course in enthusiasm!

We provide a free week at camp. They provide courage, excitement, laughter and love.
